My Thesis Statement

For me, and for , , and , dreams are [more beneficial than detrimental/more detrimental than beneficial] [despite the barriers that arise/due to the barriers that arise], and this outcome is [positively/negatively] affected by our bonds with others.

Geoffrey Aguirre: Select one of the two opinion statements, then write that opinion statement on the highlighted line above.

Geoffrey Aguirre: Select one of the two opinion words, then write that opinion word on the highlighted line above.

Geoffrey Aguirre: Effective character choices with plenty of relevant dialogue, actions, and relationships include George Milton, Lennie Small, Candy, and Curley's Wife. Less effective character choices include Slim, Carlson, Crooks, Curley. The choice, ultimately, is up to you.

Geoffrey Aguirre: Record the names of the characters you selected. This will determine the focus of the first three portions of your essay.

Geoffrey Aguirre: After you make all of you selections, your thesis statement should reflect one of the following eight (8) positions: 1. For me, and for [Character 1], [Character 2], and [Character 3], dreams are more beneficial than detrimental despite the barriers that arise, and this outcome is positively affected by our bonds with others.

2. For me, and for [Character 1], [Character 2], and [Character 3], dreams are more beneficial than detrimental despite the barriers that arise, and this outcome is negatively affected by our bonds with others.

3. For me, and for [Character 1], [Character 2], and [Character 3], dreams are more beneficial than detrimental due to the barriers that arise, and this outcome is positively affected by our bonds with others.

4. For me, and for [Character 1], [Character 2], and [Character 3], dreams are more beneficial than detrimental due to the barriers that arise, and this outcome is negatively affected by our bonds with others.

If Dreams Are "More Detrimental Than Beneficial":

5. For me, and for [Character 1], [Character 2], and [Character 3], dreams are more detrimental than beneficial despite the barriers that arise, and this outcome is positively affected by our bonds with others.

6. For me, and for [Character 1], [Character 2], and [Character 3], dreams are more detrimental than beneficial despite the barriers that arise, and this outcome is negatively affected by our bonds with others.

7. For me, and for [Character 1], [Character 2], and [Character 3], dreams are more detrimental than beneficial due to the barriers that arise, and this outcome is positively affected by our bonds with others.

8. For me, and for [Character 1], [Character 2], and [Character 3], dreams are more detrimental than beneficial due to the barriers that arise, and this outcome is negatively affected by our bonds with others.

Geoffrey Aguirre: For each choice, select one and delete the other.
